Gov. Proclaims Conservation Week in Va.

Governor Thomas B. Stanley has issued the following proclamation for "Virginia Natural Resources Conservation Week":

The citizens of Virginia inherited a land rich in natural resources. Through the years, the soils and water, forest and wildlife of this state have yielded abundantly. These resources have well measured up to the prophecy of the early settlers when they exclaimed upon reaching the virgin coast at Jamestown in 1607, "Heaven and earth never conspired together to make a land better suited for man's habitation."

We cannot afford to misuse our soil, waste our water, or fail to protect and improve our forest and wildlife resources, lest we lose our heritage. The proper use and management of these resources is essential to the health, welfare, and happiness of every citizen of this Commonwealth. Our food, fiber, and shelter, are products of these resources and our total well-being is dependent upon them. Since the natural resources of this state are so vital to all Virginians in every walk of life and since to conserve them all Virginians must have sympathetic understanding, I am designating the week of October 14 - 20, 1956, as Virginia Natural Resources Conservation Week.

The words of wisdom of our first President spoken more than two hundred years ago are still true in 1956. President Washington said, "If we ruin the lands that are already cleared, a half, a third, or even a fourth of what we mangle, well wrought and properly dressed, would produce more than the whole under our system of management." This statement envisioned the need for a sound land use program based on the capabilities of the land; a program in which every acre on the farm is put to work doing the job for which is is best suited and through which it receives the right combination of conservation practices to keep it permanently productive. In this undertaking, noteworthy progress has been achieved. Through organized soil conservation districts, aided by agricultural agencies, industry, and scores of interested organizations, more than 38,000 land owners of the state have developed soil and water conservation plans for their farms based on the capabilities of the land. Countless others, although not adopting complete conservation plans, have applied one or more conservation measures. These, also, add to the Virginia farms which are conserving soil, water, and plant food.

Protective water legislation was enacted by the 1956 General Assembly which should materially strengthen the program for conserving this all-important resource. Tree planting in numbers unprecedented in the history of the Commonwealth, has been accomplished within the past twelve months. Twenty-four and one half million trees were planted bettering a goal of twenty-million set for the year. In 1957 and 1958, even larger goals have been set. We are making progress, much progress, in the program of conserving our soils and water, forest and wildlife; but we need to re-double our efforts.

My earnest hope is that all the people of this Commonwealth will continue to foster and improve these programs so that in the not-too-distant future all our resources will be brought under a system of wise management. We can accomplish this through our united efforts. I, therefore, urge that each agricultural agency, each organization, and the people of our state continue their wholehearted support of this program and join the Virginia Association of Soil Conservation Districts, the sponsors, in the observance of Natural Resources Week, October 14 - 20, 1956.

—Thomas B. Stanley, Governor

FINDS OLD CHECKS

San Francisco.- More than twenty years ago, a resident of San Francisco bought $250 worth of American Express Travelers checks, For some reason, which even he cannot recall, he put them into a cookie jar in his home and the jar later disappeared. Recently, excavating crews, tearing down the house found the jar and the Travelers checks still intact, buried between the walls. American Express promptly redeemed the checks.

KEY TO FIGURE CONTROL

The word protein is from the Greek verb "proteos" meaning to come first. If you will heed this translation, you can find the key to figure control, weight stability, health and beauty.

There is no part of the body that is not in some way related to protein. Your hair is made of a protein substance, your nails, your muscles and tissue.

Every day you expend variable amounts of protein, depending on your occupation. A laborer requires more protein than a desk worker. The best way to keep the bloom of youth and your body in a state of good health is to eat daily the amount of protein your body breaks down for use.

The higher the protein content of your body, the longer it takes for real hunger to be felt. Protein raises the body's blood sugar level so high that appetite hunger is slow to appear. Protein is the only food element that can raise the body sugar level high enough to keep you from desiring more food, and fats are burned immediately.

This does not mean you should cut down on your other healthful food, such as fruits and vegetables, but that it is a good idea to have each meal some kind of protein breakfast, the customary bacon or sausage going with fruit is perfect. For a cottage cheese salad, or cheese sandwich with a salad. Your evening meal include beef, poultry or some other high protein food long with a balanced amount vegetables and a salad.

The homemaker will find it a pleasure to supply her with the right kind of food will be rewarded with a healthy and handsomer family.

Here's what put the magic in the new kind of FORD!
It started with the "Inner Ford." When Ford planned this baby, they thought in terms of a car through-and-through new.
The wheels got smaller. This Ford is so new that even the wheels have changed. Now smaller and broader, they help you take off quickly.
The wheelbase got longer . . . so now you can choose between a Ford that's over 16 ft. long—or one over 17 ft. long!
The frame got wider. Side rails bow out to give a more stable, safer riding platform . . . a lower, sleeker silhouette.
The ride got smoother. With new suspension, new springing front and rear, the ride this new Ford gives is the smoothest ever.
The handling got easier. Poised and balanced like a panther, this car has swept-back front suspension that works its magic when you need it most.
The power got hotter. There's a wide range of Silver Anniversary V-8's to fit every horsepower need . . . plus a new Mileage Maker Six.
"Six or V-8 the going is great"
What put the magic in the new kind of FORD?

The new Ford Fairlane 500 (118-inch wheelbase). Longer, lower, larger than many medium-priced cars, yet lower in price than most of them!
The roof got lower. And it's designed to let you make the easy entries and graceful exits you've always known.
The body got quieter. It's the strongest body built for a low-priced car. No car in Ford's field has such generous sound-proofing.
The room got bigger. There's head room to spare for a tycoon-type hat. There's real stretch-out leg room, too.
The lines got sweeter. They have the Touch of Tomorrow. Each graceful contour says, "Let's go!"
The style got smarter. With this new-look Ford you have a car that belongs anywhere! All Ford's hoodsels look like hardtops.
The value got greater . . . the price is still Ford-low.

Joel Flood, of the local circuit, was among those first named for appointment to the bench on the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals. He was endorsed for this post by the lawyers of the circuit, some 30 in number. Judge Flood announced that he felt his age, 62, and his chance of being away from Appomattox would cause him to ask not be considered. Former Governor John Battle, and Attorney General Lindsay Almond, also asked not to be considered. However, a number of prospects has been mentioned for consideration by Governor Stanley when he returns from his current trip to Europe.

Agent Jim Smith was in to see us this week and left some election buttons and stickers with us. As usual, this near to the date of the Presidential Election. The people will take polls of opinion at the drop of a hat, are having a time to get the vote in Virginia. We are going to see the local Jaycees try to put over a "Get Out the Vote" campaign here. They have some novel ideas and are all set to go over and play: "See You Later, Alligator."

We have been through many a campaign week in our time, but surely there has been one of the busiest. We hope we will make the deadline without having to omit too much material.

Speak about a thunder storm this time in October! We who have waited to put out our flower bulbs are hoping for a chance to catch a good drenching enough.

When we attended the press conference of Estes Kefauver during his recent visit to Virginia, someone asked him why he was not using his famous coonskin hat. He said that at a family conference, it was decided that that would be the dignity of a candidate for Vice-President. And, so Estes went on his most dignified role in the current campaign.

On a recent trip to Richmond, we acquired a very large Confederate flag, and have it on the wall of the office.
